The city council meets to-morrow evening. Some important matters are under consideration, among them the question of how best to light the streets. There are many citizens who are urging the council to adopt the electric lights for the main portion of the streets, at least. William Kastner yesterday entered complaint against Henry Holst for assault and battery, claiming that Holst nit him over the head with a club. Holst says that Kastner was raising a row at the St. Joe house, and he had to use a lit-tle force in self defense. The case will be heard by Justice Barnett this morn-The new hook and ladder truck being

The steamer C. E. Mayne was yesterday taken out of the lake by the outlet into the river. An attempt was made by the boating club to keep the steamer from going out that way, lest it should cut out the dam and let the water fall in the lake. The hull of the old Manawa was sunk in the outlet to prevent the steamer going through, and a rush was made for an injunction to restrain the owners. The little steamer slipped out just the same before any injunction could be served.

Those who want to supply themselves with a cheaper volume of views of Council Bluffs than those recently issued in the $5 form, can now do so by calling at W. W. Chapman's. He has had a dozen of the best views, bound in neat form, and is selling them at a merely nominal sum. The views selected by him for this purpose are such as present a very creditable showing of the city, and give one a very accurate idea of how Council Bluffs appears, as viewed from different standpoints. The cheapness of the book places it within the reach of all, and makes it easy for those desiring to send extra copies away to friends.

A strange revelation of family life such as is revealed not so uncommonly at the police station, came to light yes-terday morning. Mrs. Alice Johnson, who lives on Tenth street, applied for as-sistance from the officers in finding her two daughters, May Boyd and Allie Shields, the former sixteen and the latter eighteen years of age. They had been at Nicholson's place the night before, but were not to be found, and the mother was peculiarly anxious because Allie's child had died the night before about 11 o'clock. It was about noon when the girls were discovered and brought home by the sad news.

A Burglar Caught By Whisky. The police day before yesterday arrested a drunken fellow who was taking a snooze in an outbuilding in the rear of Mrs. Ballard's residence on first avenue. He gave his name as B. J. O'Brien, and since he has been under lock and key the officers have been hunting up his record. They are now satisfied that he is the fellow who went through Mr. Stork's house the other day, and that he also broke into J. M. Phillips' house. It was in the day time when he broke into the residence of Mr. Stork, the family being away. He got, smong other articles, a pair of gold bracelets, which he sold to Charlie Liebold for $1. Liebold saw Stork's name on the bracelets, and restored the property to the owner, this being the first knowledge that the bracelets had been taken. After O'Brien's arrest Liebold was sent for to look at him, in the hopes of identifying him, but he said O'Brien was not the man who sold the bracelets. After he had gone the the bracelets. After he had gone the police began working O'Brien, and gave him to understand that Liebold had given him away, and he then admitted having gone through Stork's house. He had hidden in his coat a gold pin, stolen from the same house. There was also found upon him a meerschaum pipe, and this was identified as one of two pipes which had been stolen from Mr. Phillips' residence. The fellow admitted having been through that house also. It was discovered that he had sold the other pipe at Goldstein's for half a dollar, it having been broken. He claimed that in getting over a fence, the pipe being in his pocket, it was in some way squeezed and cracked. At Mr. Phillips' house the fellow had only got into an outroom, and in rausacking got into an outroom, and in ransacking that he had a narrow escape from firing the house and blowing himself up. There was a pile of paper on a tea chest, and this he had evidently been burning, as the charred fragments were there. Near by was a six-pound can of powder. Had this got a spark the result can readily be imagined. He also took from this room a roll of velvet, six yards or more. He says he cannot remember what he did with this. The police have not yet dis-covered his jimmy, with which he forced open the door of Mr. Stork's house, but the marks indicate clearly that he used one. The fellow says that he has been on a spree, and that he did not realize fully what he was doing, and caunot remem-ber all that he did. The excure is not readily received, the officers holding the theory that he is a regular housebreaker, and that he has by an imprudent use of whisky acted so bunglingly as to be caught Since his arrest he has been identified as having been suspiciously prowling about other premises, which rather sustains the belief of the police that he is a professional. He is a comparatively young man, and has the usual appearance of the average sneak-thief.

Easter Than Working. Officer Beswick came across a suspicious fellow who wanted to know where he could find some cheap hotel. The officer showed him the cheapest one he knew of, and after getting him there proceeded to search him. He found some letters and other documents which showed that the fellow was engaged in the lucrative business of a professional beggar and fraud. The fellow gave his name as Harry Andrews, and he had documents evidently used in his busin ess which informed the public that he was deaf and dumb, that he was lame by reason of an accident, and that it would be son or an accident, and that it would be a great charity to give him a little money to help him get to his mother, who was very sick. There was also a letter which he had just written, apparently to a partner in Omaha, telling him that he had "struck something which beat working by the day all to pieces." Varieties of Bears in the Rockies. Scribner's for September: There is among western men much controversy as to the various kinds of bear inhabiting our western Alps; but the number of those who, from personal observation, are capable of forming an opinion is very small. In the first place, for all the sanguinary talk around the stove, there are not a great many men who have made a practice of hunting bear at all. One such incident as that which occurred two years ago in the Big Horn scares a good many. A poor fellow there came on a bear, a small cinnamon, feeding on an elk he had killed. He fired and wounded it; the bear retreated and he followed. Coming up with it, again he fired, when the bear charged him. Trying to reload (he used, I heard, a single-shot Sharp rifle), the extractor came off the empty shell, and, of course, he was defenceless. He evidently drew his knife and used it desperately; for when they found him the bear lay near him, dead, with many knife wounds in it, but it had killed him first. In short, both on account of the danger and by reason of the great difficulty in seeing them, it scarcely two years ago in the Big Horn scares a great difficulty in seeing them, it scarcely pays to hunt bear alone. There are comparatively few men, I say, whose opinion is worth much, and some of these seem to have an idea that, for the credit of the mountain-land they love so well, they are bound to people it with as many different species of bear as they can. Now, as a matter of fact, I believe that almost all the bears ranging in the second services. believe that almost all the bears ranging in the Rocky mountains occasionally breed together; certainly, brown and black sometimes do. Our party once shot a black bear with a large brown cross, extending from the tail to back of the head and down each shoulder. Just as certainly the brown and grizzly on occasions intermarry. My hunter assures me he has shot gray cubs with a brown sow. I am be wrong, but I cannot myself see any difference sufficiently marked to warrant the idea that the cinnamon bear of the Rockies is not the namon bear of the Rockies is not the coarser, larger brown bear, the result of some crossing between the grizzly and the brown.

Then, some men insist that among the gray bear there are no less than three dis-tinct varieties—silvertio, roachback and grizzly. As I have said before, I cannot say anything about the California grizzly, though I do not think, from skins I have examined, he differs materially from his neighbor of the mountain; but as to these differences of color indicating a distinct variety, I cannot believe it.

The Rocky Mountains for Recreation Scribner's for September: Why do so few of our young men go west for recre-ation? There is no land where nature recreates a man as she does there. You literally renew your youth. The climate is invigorating beyond words. For nervously exhausted men, for weary brains, there is simply nothing to touch it. I have gone to the (Rocky) mountains thoroughly fagged out, unable to sleep well or eat well—life a burden and work an impending horror. In a fortnight I have been eating as many meals a day as I could prevail on my men to cook, and have been glad to fill up chance spaces in my internal economy with raw bacon. es, many a time, after a monumental dinner, when we have gone into camp at five in the afternoon, have I eaten with relish that almost lasting of all provis-tons—a piece of raw bacon—before turning in. It is true, some, at first, find the rarefield atmosphere of the mountains trying to chest or heart, and many also complain of loss of appetite and loss of sleep; but if the man is sound in limb and lung, and if he does not overdo it or overexert himself at the very beginning, but does take regular exercise, in ten lays or so all life seems to awaken within him; he may not sleep so long or so heavily, for he has probable camped at an al-titude of eight or nine thousand feet (excellent camping places are some-times found at a height of ten thousand feet or over); and he does not need as much sleep as though he were at sea-level. He may puff and blow like a grampus as he faces a moderate hill; for he has scarcely realized yet that the atmosphere is so rare that he must boil his potatoes [if he is lucky enough to have anyl for at least two hours, and he will do better if he boil them all the morning, and that he cannot, by twentyfour hours' boiling, make beans soft enough to feed his horse. But he is growing younger, not older. The world of work and care seems very far away, walled out by the heavy mists that roll up from the plains. What a fool he was to bother his soul, as he did, with a thousand useless things!

NO OTHER REMEDY ON EARTH Will in All Cases Cure This Disease.

Since the history of medicine a true Specific for Syphilitic Disease has been sought for but never found until the discovery of our MAGIC HEMEDY. We have every reason to believe that it is absolutely unknown to any physician, specialist or chemist. Hving, either in this or the old world. It was discovered by more accident thirteen years ago by a man of no financial means but a natural chemist, who only used it in a quiet way in cases coming to his notice where sufferer could get no relief, though thoroughly trying every known romedy and employing the most skillful physicians is the land, who had ultimately progounced these cases incursible. Incurable.

The remedy here advertised has been guarded with the utmost secreey since its discovery, until a year ago, when this chemist died roor, as he always had been, and the original formula purchased of his widow. This in brief is the true history of this most Window. widew. This in brief is the true history of this most Wonderful Remedy. Y. CO. therefore have possession of the only medicine in the world that will cure this Dreaded Disease in all its forms.

They are justified in this statement for the reuson that the latest medical works, published by the best-known authorities, say there is no true specific. We say how we have a TRUE SPECIFIC—ONN THAT HAN EXCHE PALLED.
